

ABSTRACT

A method of treating graft-versus host disease and/or rejection reactions during heart, kidney, liver or bone marrow transplantation, which involves the step of administering an effective amount of a compound having a CCR antagonist effect or a salt thereof to a mammal.